TRADITIONAL

A name you can trust

Collinson Construction has built a strong reputation for delivering successful building projects in the sports and leisure, education, industrial and commercial sectors.

Over the last 20 years we have become a specialist in both traditional and modern construction methods, often blending these specialisms depending on the requirements of the project.

We launched our 'Traditional' building division to underscore our credentials as a main contractor for traditionally built construction projects across the North of England.

What we mean by 'Traditional'

Having been a UK forerunner in the adoption of modern construction methods, including modular and tensile buildings, people have come to know us primarily for these specialisms.

However, with a dedicated team of construction and property professionals from a wide range of backgrounds, we can work with you to create a shared vision for almost any project within our core sectors, either as a main contractor, or as part of a wider contract team.

We look beyond the building itself to help you achieve your goals, focusing on what success looks like for you and the people who will use your building.

What we build

Our Traditional building division focuses on traditionally built projects, typically with a contract value of up to £10m.

We work closely with the property community, including developers, architects, surveyors, engineers, client's agents, planners, and other key project stakeholders, to act as a main contracting construction partner for a wide range of developments.

Whether it's a new-build project, a major refurbishment project, or a combination of the two, we have the expertise to support your goals.

Flexibility in project design and delivery

Being versed in a wide range of building techniques means we can offer clients and their project teams a fully rounded construction service, tailoring one or more building solutions to the exact needs of the project.

We also have an in-house architectural design team which means we can either directly deliver projects from inception through to completion, or by collaborating with existing design teams and project advisors in a design management capacity.

The projects our Traditional division gets involved in covers:

-  Sports and leisure facilities
-  Office and commercial developments
-  Industrial buildings
-  Warehousing and logistics buildings
-  School and education projects
-  Healthcare buildings
-  Hotels and hospitality facilities

How we do things

The Collinson Way

✓ Safety and security as the priority

We work collaboratively with clients and partners to ensure the highest standards in safety and security. Collinson holds all relevant CHAS accreditations for compliance with UK health and safety legislation and the CDM Regulations 2015. We also have a strong system in place for vetting our suppliers chain, ensuring their safety performance is closely monitored.

✓ Robust quality management

We operate a fully integrated quality management system to ISO 9001 which supports regular reviews of effective working processes. This ensures your requirements are identified, documented, and understood.

✓ Aftercare as a forethought

We want to delight our clients and make sure they are fully happy. As well as giving you direct communication with the site delivery team throughout the build process, we offer a thorough and committed aftercare service.

✓ A commitment to collaboration

Construction projects only succeed when all parties work together. We seek a deep understanding of your requirements and build strong relationships with all members of the project team. We believe in honesty, fairness, and respect for people at all levels. Where issues do arise, we're committed to resolving them quickly, amicably and professionally.

✓ Detailed stakeholder communication

Collinson's extensive experience of managing sites with multiple stakeholders will ensure your project is run effectively with little or no disruption. We leave nothing to chance, undertaking a detailed stakeholder mapping exercise and ensuring everyone is listened to before, during and after works have been completed.

✓ Responsible and sustainable

We're committed to reducing the environmental and ecological impact of our construction projects. We work with partners to minimise consumption of natural resources, reduce waste and carbon emissions, and maximise recycling rates. We are currently working towards the Environmental Management System ISO 14001 and have committed to achieving this by 2022.

✓ Excellence in the supply chain

We use suppliers whose values align closely with our own. It's enabled us to build long-term relationships with suppliers we know can help us achieve the highest quality and value for money for you.

✓ Strong site management practices

We strive always to be a considerate and responsible contractor. Our site management teams proactively communicate our plans to stakeholders – including on issues like traffic management, logistics, security, site cleanliness and housekeeping.

Our values

Our business has grown significantly over the years, but we remain a family-run construction firm and we're still committed to the principles and core beliefs we were founded on.

A shared vision

Listening is so important to us. We work with clients and their project teams to really understand the goals of a project. By focusing on what success looks like for you we can achieve an exceptional result and a project that delivers value for money.

People

Ultimately, buildings are about people. Only by truly visualising how people will use and interact with a building, and how it impacts on people's lives, can an outstanding result be achieved. Our work in main contracting is about putting you and your people at the centre of what we do.

Excellence

Our aim is to give you an excellent experience, from our initial conversations through to project completion and aftercare. Whether people, process, or product, we are committed to the highest quality standards. We hold the ISO 9001 accreditation which shows our commitment to quality and continuous improvement.

Talent and experience

For Collinson, it's not just about recruiting the best people, it's about developing them and enabling them to grow as individuals. Whether it's an apprentice just starting out on their journey in the industry, or a member of our senior team, we believe learning and growth never stops. We invest significantly in training to stay at the forefront of the construction industry.

Honesty and transparency

We believe trust is earned, not given. We pride ourselves on communicating openly with all clients and project stakeholders. We're passionate about doing the right thing, always. If problems do arise, we work quickly and collaboratively to find a solution.

Lasting relationships

Our projects end not just when we're finished on site, but when the client is completely happy with our work. We put a strong emphasis on aftercare which helps us achieve outstanding client satisfaction and enables us to build long-term relationships.

Community

As well as striving to ensure we deliver a quality project on time and to budget, we recognise our responsibilities to the communities in which we build. These communities become a key focus for our project team and we aim to keep them fully informed and, where possible, involved in the process. Our community work also sees us supporting local groups, teams, charities, and voluntary projects.

Social value

We have long recognised the wider role our business plays in society. From reducing our impact on the environment and working with local supply chains, to being a Living Wage employer and looking after mental health and wellbeing, you can rest assured Collinson is a partner with purpose.

"The build itself and the on-site team were excellent. We also worked with Collinson prior to the start on site to ensure all key stakeholders were kept informed and all had clear expectations and understanding of the project requirements."
